The tradition of the academic costume apparently began during the 12th or 13th century in the early European universities. Since the clergy composed the majority of the educated class, academic dress is an adaptation of the cape or mantle which was usually of silk or wool and worn by church dignitaries in religious processions.

Through the years, great diversity in color and in style of cap, gown, and hood developed. In 1896, the colleges and universities in the United States adopted a uniform code governing academic dress.

While the graduates tonight all wear caps and gowns in the school color, the formal regalia worn by the faculty vary in design according to the degrees they have earned. The sleeves of the gown worn by the baccalaureate graduate are long and pointed, while the sleeves of the gown worn by the master's degree recipient are square at one end with a slit at the elbow. The doctoral gown has flowing sleeves with three bars of velvet and a facing of velvet down the front of the gown.

Colors used on the hoods serve as identification for the degree. The hood of the doctoral regalia differs in design from that of the master's as it has side panels and is slightly longer. The velvet border of the hood indicates the degree and usually follows the same code as the color of the tassels.

The oxford cap, usually referred to as a mortar board, has a long tassel which is fastened by a button on the top. The color of the tassel on the cap indicates the appropriate color for the degree.

The Academic Colors

- Agriculture Maize
- Allied Health Light Green
- Arts White
- Business Administration Drab
- Education Light Blue
- Fine Arts Brown
- Music Pink
- Nursing Apricot
- Science & Math Gold
